DeHart Local Foods Dinner & Market

The 5th Annual DeHart Dinner was held on October 4th. It sold out in record time and featured locally produced butternut squash, oyster mushrooms, pork sausage, and deserts including maple ice cream and apple crisp.

ES Classes Offered in Spring 2018

ES 110 -Two sections- MWF at 9 and 10
ES 210 -Two sections- MWF at 11 and TTh at 9:30
ES 230 -Soil to Plate- TTh at 11
ES 332 -Forest Management- TTh at 11
ES 346 -Wetlands- TTh at 9:30
ES 352 -Environmental Justice- TTh at 1:30
ES 385 -Sustainable Energy- MWF at 9
ES 390 -US Government and Environment- MW at 11
ES 395 -Applied Conservation GIS- MWF at 10
ES 425 -Global Health Transitions- TTh at 1:30

Upcoming Speakers

Some creatures we love, others we don't: Dealing with endangered and invasive species in National Wildlife Refuges
Melissa Althouse, US Fish and Wildlife Service Biologist
Thursday, November 9, 12:20 pm, Carr Hall 238

Cities take the lead: Analyzing the adoption of climate action plans by US municipalities
Matt Bethurem, Ph.D., Allegheny College
Thursday, November 30, 12:20 pm, Carr 238

Soup lunch provided
SEA’s Annual Wild & Scenic Film Festival

On Saturday October 28, 2017, Allegheny College’s student led club Students for Environmental Action (SEA) held their annual Wild & Scenic Film Festival at the college’s Campus Center and Shafer Auditorium. The club’s board members had been working since the Spring 2017 Semester and over summer break in preparation for the event. Over the summer, SEA applied for and won a grant from the local environmental organization the French Creek Valley Conservancy, which made the event possible. The films for the event are meticulously chosen from a list of hundreds provided by the partnership with the South Yuba River Citizens League (SYRCL).

This year there was a total of 10 films representing the theme of activism inspired by adventure. The featured film Great Lakes, Bad Lines wrapped up the event with two men originally from the state of Michigan adventuring throughout the Great Lakes by any means except fossil fuels. They received a grant from Patagonia to produce this film and spread the word to those in the area about the Enbridge Pipeline that starts in Michigan and travels beneath the Straits of Mackinac. They took a positive approach through surfing, biking, climbing, sailing, and hiking to tell the tale and spread awareness. The film festival was a hit this year, tallying over 100 visitors including Allegheny College students and community members from the town of Meadville. SEA wishes a special thanks to our sponsor the French Creek Valley Conservancy, musical guest the Salmon Franks, and everyone who came to support and enjoy the event.

-Rene Benoit ’20

Featured in Photo: Akeem Adesiji ’20, Rene Benoit ’20, Kylie Wirebach ’20, Maura Campbell ’20, Sam Williams ’20, Natalie DeSantis ’18, Carla Aldana ’20, Lucie Shiffman ‘18, Erin Zehr ’18

Editor: Brittany Lutheran ‘19