Fellowships and Funding Opportunities
November 2015

Allegheny’s Office of Foundation & Corporate Relations works to secure grants for the College and its faculty and staff from foundations, corporations and government agencies. We can help you to identify funding sources, prepare proposals and manage grants once funding has been received. Check our website for more information: sites.allegheny.edu/foundations/

The following list includes a wide variety of fellowships and grants that might be of interest to Allegheny faculty.

A  -  for faculty in all divisions
H  -  primarily for faculty in the humanities (which can include history)
SS -  primarily for faculty in the social sciences
NS -  primarily for faculty in the natural sciences

(H) The W.F. Albright Institute of Archeological Research annually provides fellowships and awards to 32 recipients. Fellowships are open to students and scholars in Near Eastern studies from prehistory through the early Islamic period, including the fields of archaeology, anthropology, art history, Bible, epigraphy, historical geography, history, language, literature, philology and religion and related disciplines. The research period should be continuous, without frequent trips outside the country. Residence at the Albright is required (except for the Frerichs Fellow and Program Coordinator).

(H) The American Academy in Rome awards the Rome Prize to about 30 emerging artists and scholars who represent the highest standard of excellence in the arts and humanities and who are in the early or middle stages of their careers. Prize recipients spend six months to two years in Rome. The academy also hosts recipients of a number of affiliated awards and fellowships, and information on these is available at the academy’s website. http://www.aarome.org/apply/visiting-artists-scholars

(H, SS) The American Antiquarian Society offers three broad categories of visiting research fellowships, with tenures ranging from one to 12 months. All of the fellowships are designed to enable scholars and others to spend an uninterrupted block of time doing research in the AAS library in Worcester, Mass., on their projects and discussing their work with others. www.americanantiquarian.org/fellowships.htm

(NS) The American Association for the Advancement of Science sponsors the L’ORÉAL USA Fellowships for Women in Science program. This fellowship program recognizes and rewards exceptionally talented women engaged in breakthrough scientific research. The fellowships are awarded to women engaged in basic research in the life and physical/material sciences, technology (including computer science), engineering and mathematics. www.aaas.org/programs/education/loreal.shtml

(A) The American Association of University Women (AAUW) offers several types of American Fellowships to support women doctoral candidates completing dissertations or scholars seeking funds for postdoctoral research leave from accredited institutions. Candidates are evaluated on the basis of scholarly excellence, teaching experience and active commitment to helping women and girls through service in their communities, professions or fields of research. www.aauw.org/what-we-do/educational-funding-and-awards/

(NS) The American Chemical Society (ACS) offers a number of grant, fellowship, award, scholarship and internship opportunities. ACS also manages the Petroleum Research Fund, which offers grants that support fundamental research directly related to petroleum or fossil fuels. http://www.acs.org/content/acs/en/funding-and-awards.html

(H, SS) The American Council of Learned Societies (ACLS) offers a variety of fellowships and grants in more than a dozen programs for research in the humanities and humanistic social sciences at the doctoral and postdoctoral levels. An ACLS Fellowship may be held concurrently with other fellowships and grants and any sabbatical pay, up to an amount equal to the candidate's current academic year salary. The website provides links to individual program descriptions for fellowships in a variety of disciplines. www.acls.org/programs/acls/

(NS) The American Mathematics Society (AMS) offers a number of fellowships, prizes and awards to recognize outstanding achievement in mathematical research, exceptional public service in support of research and education in the mathematical sciences, and significant contributions to the public understanding of mathematics. Eligible candidates will have held a doctoral degree for at least three and not more than 12 years and hold a tenured, tenure-track, post-doctoral or comparable position.
http://www.ams.org/programs/programs

(H, SS) The American Philosophical Society offers a number of research programs for scholars, primarily for faculty in the humanities and social sciences. Funding opportunities include Franklin Research Grants, Lewis and Clark Fund for Exploration and Field Research Grants, Library Resident Research Fellowships, and Phillips Fund for Native American Research Grants. www.amphilsoc.org/grants

(SS) The American Psychological Foundation (APF) of the American Psychological Association seeds innovation through supporting projects and programs that use psychology to solve social problems. APF grants align with its mission of enhancing psychology to elevate the human condition and advance human potential. It offers grants for early career funding and seed grants for research and for targeted programs. www.apa.org/apf/funding/grants/index.aspx

(H) The Arts and Healing Network offers an extensive list of funding opportunities that support the creation of art as well as healing work. Grant seekers may enter their geographic location and medium in which they work to find the opportunities that are most relevant for them. http://artheals.org/artist-support/art_grants.html

(NS) The Arnold and Mabel Beckman Foundation sponsors the Beckman Young Investigators Program to provide research support to the most promising young faculty in the early stages of academic careers in the chemical and life sciences. The program is open to faculty with not more than four full years in a tenure-track appointment at an institution that conducts fundamental research in the chemical and life sciences. Projects should show promise for contributing to significant advances in the research fields of interest to the foundation. Proposed research that cuts across traditional boundaries of scientific disciplines is encouraged. http://www.beckman-foundation.com/programs

(H) The Black Rock Arts Foundation funds highly interactive, community-driven works of art that prioritize community involvement in their development, execution and display. The art should be accessible to the public, civic in scope and prompt the viewer to act. Projects that involve the audience in conception, creation and presentation are preferred. www.blackrockarts.org/grants

(H) The Bogliasco Foundation, Inc. offers residential fellowships at the Liguria Study Center in Bogliasco, Italy, for individuals doing advanced creative or scholarly work in the arts and humanities. Fields of interest include archaeology, architecture, classics, dance, film/video, history, landscape architecture, literature, music, philosophy, theater and the visual arts. www.bfny.org/english/mission.cfm

(A) The Charles Bullard Fellowship in Forest Research at Harvard University supports advanced research and study by individuals who show promise of making an important contribution, either as scholars or administrators, to forestry and forest-related subjects from biology to earth sciences, economics, politics, administration, philosophy, humanities, the arts or law. Bullard Fellowships are generally awarded to individuals in mid-career, and recipients spend one to two semesters conducting research based in Cambridge or at the Harvard Forest in Petersham.
http://harvardforest.fas.harvard.edu/mid-career-fellowships

(SS) The James McKeen Cattell Fund supports the science and application of psychology. The fund offers a program of supplementary sabbatical awards, James McKeen Cattell Fund Fellowships, to supplement regular sabbatical allowance provided by recipients' home institutions. Eligibility requirements and awards are available on the website. www.cattell.duke.edu/index.html

(H) CEC ArtsLink provides support to U.S. artists, curators, presenters and arts organizations undertaking projects in 37 eligible countries. Applicants must work with an artist or organization in that region and projects should be designed to benefit participants and audiences in both the U.S. and the host country. ArtsLink has a cycle of alternate year deadlines according to discipline. http://www.cecartslink.org/grants/usa.html

(A) The Center for Advanced Study in the Behavioral Sciences (CASBS), located in Stanford, Cal., supports about 20 residential fellows each year. Faculty at all academic levels may apply, provided they exhibit a high level of achievement including a strong record of research publications. CASBS encourages applications from younger scholars at least three to four years past the doctorate, typically for a fellowship year soon after achieving tenure. Applications from ethnic minorities, women, international scholars and scholars from less research-oriented colleges and universities are encouraged. In addition to scholars working in fields of the behavioral and social sciences, scholars in the natural sciences, the humanities, the arts, the professions and public life are considered for fellowships when their work has human behavioral and social dimensions that complement and influence the work of classmates. www.casbs.org

(H) The Clark Fellowship Program, offered by The Sterling and Francine Clark Art Institute in Williamstown, Mass., offers between 15 and 20 fellowships each year, ranging in duration from six weeks to 10 months. They look for projects that extend and enhance the understanding of the visual arts and their role in culture. Stipends are dependent on salary and sabbatical replacement needs. Housing and an office also are provided. The Clark combines a public art museum with a complex of research and academic programs, including a major art history library. It functions as an international center in both the academic and museum fields for research and discussion on the nature of art and its history. http://www.clarkart.edu/rap/fellowship/About-Clark-Fellowships

(A) The Council of American Overseas Research Centers (CAORC) Multi-Country Fellowship Program supports advanced regional or trans-regional research in the humanities, social sciences, or allied natural sciences for U.S. doctoral candidates and scholars who already have earned a Ph.D. Preference will be given to candidates examining comparative and/or cross-regional research. Scholars must carry out research in two or more countries outside the United States, at least one of which hosts a participating American overseas research center. http://caorc.org/fellowships/multi/
(SS) The Council on Foreign Relations (CFR) offers the International Affairs Fellowship (IAF), a distinguished program to assist mid-career scholars and professionals in advancing analytic capabilities and broadening foreign policy experience. The program aims to strengthen career development by helping outstanding individuals acquire and apply foreign policy skills beyond the scope of their professional and scholarly achievements. Selected fellows from academia and the private sector spend fellowship tenures in public service and policy-oriented settings, while government officials spend their tenures in a scholarly atmosphere. http://www.cfr.org/thinktank/fellowships/iaf.html

(H) The Creative Capital Foundation supports artistic work with the potential for significant artistic and cultural impact. The Foundation seeks to act as a catalyst for the development of adventurous and imaginative ideas. Mediums rotate annually. http://www.creative-capital.org/ourprogram

(NS) The Camille and Henry Dreyfus Foundation offers several programs for both new and experienced science faculty in support of their research. The goal of the foundation is to advance the sciences of chemistry, biochemistry, chemical engineering and related sciences. www.dreyfus.org/

(NS) The Eppley Foundation for Research funds advanced scientific research in medicine, life sciences and the physical sciences by candidates with an established record of publication in their specialties. Particular areas of interest include innovative medical investigations and applications, endangered animals and ecosystems, and climate change. The foundation usually does not support areas where there is considerable funding from conventional sources. The foundation does not maintain an independent website, but information may be found at http://foundationcenter.org/grantmaker/eppley/.

(H) The Folger Shakespeare Library offers research fellowships to encourage access to its exceptional collections and to encourage ongoing cross-disciplinary dialogue among scholars of the early modern period. Each year, scholars may compete for a limited number of long-term (six to nine months) and short-term (one to three months) fellowships. http://www.folger.edu/Content/Folger-Institute/Fellowships/

(A) The Ford Foundation offers a Fellowship Program to increase the diversity of the nation’s college and university faculties by increasing their ethnic and racial diversity. Awards are made to scholars with demonstrated superior academic achievement who are committed to careers in teaching and research, who show promise of future achievement as scholars and teachers and who are prepared to use diversity as a resource for enriching the education of all students. http://sites.nationalacademies.org/pga/fordfellowships/

(H) The Fox (Bill and Carol) Center for Humanistic Inquiry at Emory University awards up to three annual Junior and Post-Doctoral Fellowships for an academic year of study, teaching and residence in the Center. The program aims to stimulate and support humanistic research by providing scholars in early stages of their careers with time, space and other resources and to allow the Emory community access to a range of humanistic work by visiting scholars from other institutions. http://fchi.emory.edu/home/
(H) The Frick Collection/Center for the History of Collecting in America: Scholars' Program offers short-term Senior Fellowships (eight to ten weeks) and long-term (four to five months) Leon Levy Fellowships for post-doctoral and senior scholars. Preference will be given to researchers whose projects are appropriate to the resources available at the Frick Art Reference Library. Fellowship proposals may address wide-ranging aspects of the history of collecting in the United States, from Colonial times to the present, and may focus on individual collectors, dealers, developments or trends in the art market. Interdisciplinary research subjects are especially encouraged. http://www.frick.org/research/center/fellowships

(A) The Fulbright Scholar Program, administered by the Council for International Exchange of Scholars at the U.S. State Department, offers several opportunities. The traditional Fulbright Scholar Program sends 800 U.S. faculty and professionals abroad each year. Grantees lecture and conduct research in a wide variety of academic and professional fields. The Fulbright Senior Specialists Program is designed to provide short-term academic opportunities (two to six weeks) for U.S. faculty and professionals. Shorter grant lengths give specialists greater flexibility to pursue a grant that works best with their current academic or professional commitments. www.cies.org/

(H) Getty Scholar and Visiting Scholar Grants provide support for a residence at the Getty Research Institute or the Getty Villa in Malibu, Cal., where recipients pursue their own research projects free from academic obligations, make use of Getty collections, join their colleagues in a weekly meeting devoted to the theme for the year and participate in the intellectual life of the Getty. http://www.getty.edu/foundation/funding/residential/

(A) The John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Foundation provides fellowships to further the development of scholars and artists by assisting them to engage in research in any field of knowledge and creation in any of the arts. Fellowships are awarded to advanced professionals in all fields (natural sciences, social sciences, humanities, creative arts) except the performing arts. Successful applicants already will have demonstrated exceptional capacity for productive scholarship or exceptional creative ability in the arts. www.gf.org/

(H) The Gunk Foundation’s Grants for Public Art has been temporarily suspended. When active, it supports arts projects that make it out of the museum, gallery and alternative spaces and into the spaces of daily life. For example, they support work that is shown in the spaces of public transportation, city streets or work places and is seen by people outside of the art and academic worlds. They look for non-traditional, thought-provoking public work that is site specific. http://www.gunk.org/criteria.html

(H) The Hiett Prize in the Humanities is an annual award presented by the Dallas Institute of Humanities and Culture to a person whose work in the humanities shows extraordinary promise and has a significant public or applied component related to cultural concerns. Its purpose is to encourage future leaders in the humanities by recognizing their early accomplishment and their potential and assisting their work through a cash award. Candidates should be within the early stages of a career track in which the primary work is in a field centered in or directly related to one or more of the humanities.  http://dallasinstitute.org/

(H, SS) The George A. and Eliza Howard Foundation awards a limited number of fellowships each year for independent projects in fields selected on a rotational basis. The intention of the foundation is primarily to support people in the middle stages of their careers whose work to date is evidence of their promise and achievement. Nominees generally should have the rank of assistant or associate professor. Support is intended to augment paid sabbatical leaves. www.brown.edu/Divisions/Graduate_School/Howard_Foundation/

(A) The Alexander von Humboldt Foundation, a German foundation, promotes international research cooperation. It enables post-doctoral scientists and scholars not resident in Germany to spend extended periods of research in Germany and promotes the ensuing academic contacts and cooperation. Fellowships are awarded to young postdoctoral researchers at the beginning of their academic careers, as well as to experienced, established academics, and they are tailored to the individual and their career situation. http://www.humboldt-foundation.de/web/home.html

(H) The Huntington Library is an independent research center in San Marino, Cal., with holdings in British and American history, literature, art history and the history of science and medicine. The Huntington awards more than 100 fellowships to scholars annually. These fellowships derive from a variety of funding sources and have different terms. Recipients of all fellowships are expected to be in continuous residence at the Huntington and to participate in and make a contribution to its intellectual life. The following website includes a list of fellowships in the humanities: www.huntington.org/

(A) The Institute for Advanced Study (IAS) selects approximately 190 members each year from an average of more than 1,500 applicants. Members spend periods ranging from one term to several years at one of the four schools of the institute, located in Princeton, N.J. Young scholars and applicants from non-traditional backgrounds who have outstanding promise are considered, as are senior scholars with established reputations. The major consideration in the appointment process is the expectation that each member’s residency at the institute will result in work of significance and originality. Application materials and guidelines are available from each of the four schools (historical studies, mathematics, natural sciences, social science). There are also special programs in a number of fields including the arts, mathematics and physics. http://www.ias.edu/

(SS) The Institute for Research on Poverty (IRP) offers three programs to facilitate interaction among a broad range of social science scholars: the first is targeted at U.S.-based scholars from underrepresented racial and ethnic groups and includes IRP financial support; the second is targeted at food assistance and food insecurity researchers and includes support from IRP and the Economic Research Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture; and the third is open to visitors working on poverty-related research who have their own funding, for limited or longer-term stays.
http://www.irp.wisc.edu/initiatives/vscholars.htm

(H, SS) The Library Company of Philadelphia and The Historical Society of Pennsylvania jointly award approximately 30 one-month fellowships for research in residence in either or both collections during each academic year. These two independent research libraries, adjacent to each other in Philadelphia, have complementary collections capable of supporting research in a variety of fields and disciplines relating to the history of America and the Atlantic world from the 17th through the 19th centuries, as well as Mid-Atlantic regional history to the present. www.librarycompany.org/fellowships

(A) The Library of Congress/John W. Kluge Center offers post-doctoral fellowships to scholars pursuing residential research, usually for periods from six to twelve months. Interdisciplinary and cross-cultural topics of a kind normally not encouraged in specialized departmental settings are welcome. Selection of a diverse group of Fellows is by various competitions. Post-doctoral Fellows have an opportunity to discuss their research with Kluge Scholars and to explore possibilities for intellectual collaboration.
http://www.loc.gov/loc/kluge/fellowships/

(H) Loeb Classical Library Foundation grants provide support for research, publication and other projects in classical studies. Grants may be used for a wide variety of purposes, including publication of research, enhancement of sabbaticals, travel to libraries or collections, dramatic productions, excavation expenses or cost of research materials.
http://www.lclf.harvard.edu/icb/icb.do

(H) The Metropolitan Museum of Art Fellowship Program offers graduate students and senior scholars the opportunity to undertake study and research related to their work in art history, archaeology and art conservation, either at the museum or abroad. Proposed projects should relate to the museum's collection. Possible fields of research for art history candidates include Western art; Asian art; the arts of Africa, Oceania, and the Americas; antiquities; arms and armor; costumes; drawings; illuminated manuscripts; paintings; photographs; sculpture; and textiles. Some fellowships for travel abroad are also available for students whose projects involve firsthand examination of paintings in major European collections.
http://www.metmuseum.org/research/internships-and-fellowships/fellowships

(H) La Napoule Art Foundation nurtures artistic talent through a number of residencies and community outreach projects for artists, fostering the creative process as a catalyst to advance intercultural understanding. Opportunities are available for accomplished and emerging artists from around the world.
http://www.lnaf.org/about/

(H) The National Endowment for the Humanities offers several programs for scholars, including:

- The Fellowships Program for Independent Research Institution Awards provides funding for research at a number of institutions such as the American

- The Summer Stipends Program supports individuals pursuing advanced research that contributes to scholarly knowledge or to the public's understanding of the humanities. Recipients usually produce scholarly articles, monographs on specialized subjects, books on broad topics, archaeological site reports, translations, editions, or other scholarly tools. www.neh.gov/grants/

(H) The Center for Advanced Study in the Visual Arts at the National Gallery of Art offers a number of fellowships for full-time research. Scholars reside in Washington and participate in the activities of the center. Lectures, colloquia and informal discussions complement the fellowship program. Applications will be considered for study in the history, theory and criticism of the visual arts of any geographical area and of any period. http://www.nga.gov/casva/casvavissen.shtm

(H) The National Humanities Center offers 40 residential fellowships for advanced study in the humanities during the academic year. Applicants must hold doctoral or equivalent scholarly credentials. Young scholars as well as senior scholars are encouraged to apply, but they must have a record of publication. In addition to scholars from all fields of the humanities, the Center accepts individuals from the natural and social sciences, the arts, the professions and public life who are engaged in humanistic projects. Located in the Research Triangle Park of North Carolina, the Center provides an environment for individual research and the exchange of ideas among scholars. Fellowships are individually determined, the amount depending upon the needs of the Fellow and the Center's ability to meet them. http://nationalhumanitiescenter.org/fellowships/index.htm

(NS) The National Research Council Research Associateship Programs (RAP) are designed to promote excellence in scientific and technological research conducted by the U. S. government through the administration of programs offering graduate, postdoctoral, and senior level research opportunities at sponsoring federal laboratories and affiliated institutions. http://sites.nationalacademies.org/pga/rap/

(H) The Newberry Library is an independent research library concentrating in the humanities with an active educational and cultural presence in Chicago. Fellowships at the Newberry Library provide assistance to researchers who wish to use the collections, but who cannot finance a visit on their own. Fellowships are of two types: short-term fellowships of one to two months and long-term fellowships of four to 12 months. http://www.newberry.org/fellowships

(NS) The Oak Ridge Institute for Science and Education and Oak Ridge Associated Universities offer a number of research resources through these related organizations. Programs include support for academic fellowships and scholarships, research experiences, sabbaticals and internships. http://see.orau.org/
(SS, NS) The Property and Environment Research Center (PERC) offers the Julian Simon Fellowship for scholars to develop policy-oriented research on natural resource and environmental conservation. The in-residence fellowship is intended to continue the legacy of Julian Simon, whose research led to a massive re-evaluation by scholars and policy makers of their views on the interplay between population, natural resources and the environment. http://perc.org/julian-simon-fellowship

(A) The Radcliffe Institute for Advanced Study offers residential fellowships to humanists, social scientists, creative artists, natural scientists and mathematicians who receive office or studio space and access to libraries and other resources of Harvard University during the fellowship year. Fellows are expected to be free of their regular commitments so they may devote themselves full time to the work outlined in their proposal. Fellows are expected to reside in the Boston area and to have their primary office at the institute so that they can participate fully in the life of the community. http://www.radcliffe.harvard.edu/fellowship-program

(H) The Harry Ransom Humanities Research Center at the University of Texas at Austin awards about 50 fellowships annually to support scholarly research projects in all areas of the humanities. Priority is given to proposals that concentrate on the center's collections and that require substantial on-site use of them. Each year the fellowship program has a special topic. http://www.hrc.utexas.edu/research/fellowships/

(NS) The Research Corporation is a foundation dedicated to the advancement of science. It offers several different programs of research support including Cottrell College Science Awards, which provide support for significant research that contributes to the advancement of science and to the professional and scholarly development of faculty at undergraduate institutions along with their students; Cottrell Scholar Awards for beginning faculty members who wish to excel at both research and teaching; Research Innovation Awards, which encourage innovation by scientists early in their academic careers; Research Opportunity Awards for scientists of demonstrated productivity seeking to explore a new area of research; and Special Opportunities in Science Awards, which provide support for projects that advance scientific research or that impact the infrastructure of science. www.rescorp.org

(SS) The Russell Sage Foundation is devoted to research in the social sciences. Located in New York City, it is a research center, a funding source for studies by scholars at other academic and research institutions, and an active member of the nation's social science community. The foundation's awards are restricted to support for basic social science research within their announced programs, and it has established a center where visiting scholars can pursue their writing and research, typically, though not always, related to the foundation's current programs. www.russellsage.org/

(H, SS) The School for Advanced Research (SAR) awards several kinds of residential scholar fellowships to scholars who have completed their research and who need time to prepare manuscripts on topics important to the understanding of humankind. Resident scholars may approach their research from the perspective of anthropology or from related fields such as history, sociology, art and philosophy. Both humanistically and scientifically oriented scholars are encouraged to apply.
http://sarweb.org/index.php?scholars

(NS) The Simons Foundation offers a Simons Fellows in Mathematics program, which enables research leaves providing time away from classroom teaching and academic administration. These leaves are intended to provide strong intellectual stimulation and lead to increased creativity and productivity in research. Awards are based on the applicant's scientific accomplishment in the five-year period preceding the application and on a judgment of the potential scientific impact of the leave period.
https://simonsfoundation.org/mathematics-program-description

(A) The Smithsonian Institution Fellowship Program offers fellowships to recipients to conduct research in a discipline pursued at the Smithsonian in Washington, D.C. Projects that broaden and diversify the research conducted within these disciplines are encouraged. Fellowships are offered to support research at Smithsonian facilities or field stations, and fellows are expected to spend most of their tenure in residence at the Smithsonian, except when arrangements are made for periods of field work or research travel. The Smithsonian offers Postdoctoral Fellowships to scholars who have held a Ph.D. or equivalent for less than seven years and Senior Fellowships to scholars who have held a Ph.D. or equivalent for seven years or more.

(A) The Social Science Research Council (SSRC) sponsors fellowship and grant programs on a wide range of topics, and across many different career stages. Although most programs target the social sciences, many are also open to applicants from the humanities, the natural sciences, and relevant professional and practitioner communities. The SSRC fellowship and grant website includes links to related fellowship and grant opportunities from other funding sources. http://www.ssrc.org/fellowships/

(SS, H) Tulane University/The Murphy Institute’s Center for Ethics and Public Affairs offers Faculty Fellowships to support outstanding faculty whose teaching and research focus on ethics, political philosophy, political theory or questions of moral choice in areas such as, but not restricted to, business, government, law, economics and medicine. While fellows will participate in conferences and seminars organized by the center, they will be expected to devote most of their time to conducting their own research. http://murphy.tulane.edu/programs/center/faculty-fellowships/

(SS) The University of Michigan Center for Education of Women Visiting Scholar Program is an opportunity for scholars to pursue research projects relevant to women using the vast resources available through the Center for the Education of Women (CEW) and the University of Michigan. A scholar’s stay at the Center can range from two to twelve months, preferably between the months of September and April. Visiting scholars are responsible for producing a written paper or summary of their work and presenting it at a research seminar or workshop. http://www.cew.umich.edu/research/facres
(A) The William S. Vaughn Visiting Fellowship from the Robert Penn Warren Center for the Humanities at Vanderbilt University in Nashville, Tenn., accepts applications from scholars in all disciplines to explore a different interdisciplinary theme each year. Successful applicants will have completed the terminal degree in their field and will have a record of scholarly publication. Recipients meet weekly at a faculty seminar, allowing the visiting fellow ample time to pursue a major research project. http://www.vanderbilt.edu/rpw_center/

(H) The Virginia Foundation for the Humanities, Resident Fellowship program offers residential fellowships to scholars and writers in the humanities. There are no restrictions on topic, and applications are invited from a broad spectrum of the humanities. Applications should be intellectually stimulating, imaginative and accessible to the public. Fellowships are awarded for either a semester or full academic year. Fellows’ living and working spaces are located near the University of Virginia in Charlottesville. www.virginiafoundation.org/research/fellowships/

(H) The Andy Warhol Foundation for the Visual Arts supports the Arts Writing Initiative, which addresses criticism and general writing about the visual arts. The project has two components: grants to writers, which support various types of projects, from books to essays to experimental writing in new media; and grants to non-profit arts publications. The Arts Writers Grant Program supports writers whose work addresses contemporary visual art through grants. www.warholfoundation.org/grant/arts.html

(SS, H) The Woodrow Wilson International Center for Scholars awards approximately 20-25 residential fellowships annually to individuals with outstanding project proposals in a broad range of the social sciences and humanities on national and/or international issues. Topics and scholarship should relate to key public policy challenges or provide the historical and/or cultural framework to illuminate policy issues of contemporary importance.
