The object of the Senior Project is to pursue independent research, to produce a clear, coherent, and well-articulated written project, and to defend your ideas in an oral examination. There is no minimum or maximum length required for the written project. We recommend a final product of at least 60 pages. For lone INTST majors working in French, German, or Spanish, at least 25% of all sources should be relevant foreign language sources, and the project is to include a fifteen-page summary written in the foreign language. For INTST/MCL double majors, at least 40% of all sources should be relevant foreign language sources, and the project is to include a twenty-page chapter written in the foreign language. (This chapter should either continue the project's line of analysis or explore a matter closely related to the project; it should be rendered into a five-six page summary in English.) An oral examination of approximately fifteen minutes will be conducted in that same foreign language. (The entire oral examination is about one hour in length.) For Chinese and Arabic, please see specific guidelines on the International Studies Program website. Double majors in INTST and another department or program should consult carefully within both majors to understand the expectations for their particular Senior Project.

Your Senior Project will be evaluated on the quality of research, the originality of the thesis, the nature and quality of the sources, and the clarity of expression in both languages. As International Studies is a multi-disciplinary program, it is expected that the written essay and oral examination will reflect integration of the fields and methods of analysis represented by the disciplines of economics, history, and political science. Faculty members encourage students to take a comprehensive approach to the Senior Project. Students should consult with INTST 600 board members early in the process for guidance in structuring their project.

The evaluation will be conducted by an examining board consisting of three faculty members. The INTST 600 board will be selected by the student and will normally consist of three INTST affiliated faculty listed on pp. 8-10 of these Guidelines. Each of these three faculty members must come from a different academic department. The board must include a member from the Department of Modern and Classical Languages, and it must include at least one member from the Economics Department, the History Department, or the Political Science Department. If the Project Director is from the Department of Modern and Classical Languages, the two additional board members must typically both come from the Social Sciences, each from a different department. The INTST 610 board will, except in cases of faculty sabbatical or other cases of faculty leave, normally consist of the same three faculty members. The exact composition of the examining board is established with the Project Director. Typically, the INTST 600 exam/conversation lasts about 30 minutes and the INTST 610 exam about one hour. Both oral exams cover the topic of the written essay, the general fields related to it, and methods of research, including the bibliography. The use of laptop computers at INTST 600 and INTST 610 exams is not permitted.
Pre-Registration and Registration:

At the start of the senior year (or in the spring of the junior year if the student is planning to write the Senior Project in the fall semester), students should meet with faculty members to consult on the topic of their Senior Project. The first step is to speak with faculty who work and teach in areas about which students are considering writing. (See attached list of faculty involved in the INTST Program.) These preliminary conversations should occur during the first two weeks of the semester. (During these first two weeks, students should also establish contact with the faculty member who will serve as Foreign Language Director for the project.) Students are responsible for asking faculty members to serve on their board. By the end of the fourth week of the semester in which students are writing their proposal, the composition of the INTST 600 board should be formally concretized. During the course of INTST 600 and INTST 610 it is the students’ responsibility to establish and maintain frequent contact with the INTST 600 and INTST 610 board members.

We recommend that students choose a topic about which they have had some previous academic experience -- in a classroom setting, through a guided internship, or in some other research opportunity. We expect that the topic of the project pertain in a meaningful way to the foreign language the student has elected and that a significant portion of the bibliographical material utilized will be in the foreign language. In order to facilitate registration, students register with Professor Reeck for INTST 600. At the time of registration for INTST 600, students will need to bring a completed signature card to Professor Reeck. Double majors must write clearly on the card: DOUBLE INTERNATIONAL STUDIES AND ____________.

At the time of registration for INTST 610, students must bring a completed add card to their PROJECT DIRECTOR. Again, double majors must be sure to indicate this clearly on the card.

The Senior Project is a four credit hour course and is offered both semesters of the senior year. It is not offered during the summer.

INTST 600 Project Proposal:

During the semester prior to the term in which students plan to undertake their Senior Project they are required to submit a formal Project Proposal. The following form should be used as a cover page and a guide for students in writing their INTST 600 proposal.

INTERNATIONAL STUDIES ABSTRACT OF SENIOR PROJECT PROPOSAL

INTST 600

The INTST 600 process has FIVE deadlines.

1. By Friday of the third full week of classes, the student should complete and submit the cover sheet available on the IS webpage under “Senior Project” (http://sitesmedia.s3.amazonaws.com/intstudies/files/2015/08/IS600ProjectProposalForm.pdf) with requisite signatures to the INTST Chairperson. For fall 2017, the due date is Friday, September 22. For spring 2018, the due date is Friday, Feb. 9.

2. A hard copy of the proposal should be completed and submitted to the chairperson of the International Studies Program and the three board members by Friday of the sixth full week of classes. For students enrolled in INTST 600 in fall 2017, the due date is Friday October 13. For students enrolled in INTST 600 in spring 2017, the due date is Friday March 2.

3. Students should schedule a meeting with their three-member faculty board during the seventh or eighth week of classes. For fall 2017, the dates for that meeting are October 16-27. For spring 2018, those dates are March 5-16. The chief purpose of this meeting is for board members to provide feedback on the central question posed, advice on how to integrate the disciplines, and help in identifying appropriate sources.

4. One week after the conference is held, students should submit to their board a one-page summary of the conference which includes a revised question and revised chapter outline.

5. Final proposals are due to Professor Reeck (INTST Chair, Ruter 204) and board members in paper copy by Tuesday, November 21, 2017 for projects to be undertaken in spring 2018 and by Friday, April 13 for projects to be undertaken in fall 2018. Final proposals are typically 5-7 pages long, not including the bibliography.

The proposal should include the following:
- A paragraph describing how you got interested in the topic and how it is related to your coursework;
- A clear statement of the central question;
- An informed, supported description of the scholarly conversation into which the project would enter or to which it would contribute, together with a discussion of the analytic techniques to be employed;
- A working chapter outline of the project (i.e., number of chapters and subject matter to be considered in chapters; projects typically include four chapters);
- Annotated bibliography with at least 15 annotations. For single INTST majors, at least 25% of the sources should be in the foreign language. For double INTST/MCL majors, at least 40% of the sources should be in the foreign language.

Note: Proposals are typically 5-7 pages, not including the annotations. Please consult frequently with the Project Director(s) on the content of the proposal.

Writing Your Senior Project:

The student and his/her Project Director will work out the best writing schedule and appropriate chapter due dates. Remember that writing almost always takes more time than originally estimated. (Please note that, because writing is so time-consuming, students should plan to complete a good portion of their research prior to the semester in which they expect to write and defend their project.) Remember, too, that it is important to allow time to make revisions.

Students are strongly encouraged to consult with board members other than their Project Director to obtain their advice and counsel. It is the students’ responsibility to submit chapter drafts to the Project Director and any other board members and to do so in sufficient time to make revisions. Typically, students submit drafts of chapters as they become available. The board members are not copy editors, so students should not ask him or her to do this work for them. Be sure to submit work to the Foreign Language Director well in advance of the day the final version of the Senior Project is due. We recommend at least two weeks before the posted deadline. If time permits, the Foreign Language Director will provide suggestions and corrections.
Required Format

For INTST 600: Hard copies to the three board members and to Professor Reeck. For INTST 610: a bound copy to each board member. (Professor Reeck does not need a copy.) Students are required to submit an abstract for posting on the International Studies web page (http://sites.allegheny.edu/intstudies/student-resources/form/) and to upload their projects to DSpace. [Complete instructions and permission form are available at http://library.allegheny.edu/seniorprojects. If you have any questions, please contact Brian Kern (bkern@allegheny.edu).] Finally, students are responsible for scheduling the date and time of their oral examination.

Only standard size and style type (i.e., 11 or 12 point) and black ink may be used for the paper. Only letter quality printing will be accepted. The college will help defray the cost of Senior Projects duplicated at the College Print Shop. Paper utilized should be good quality 8½" x 11" stock with one inch top, bottom, and side margins. All typing except page numbers is to fall inside the margins. Care should also be taken that new headings do not appear as the last line on a page.

Pagination: Number all pages in the upper right-hand corner, starting with the first page of Chapter I as page 1. Preceding pages should be numbered in lower-case Roman numerals, with the unnumbered title page counting as "i."

The written essay should include, in this order:

1. Cover page, available online at http://sites.allegheny.edu/intstudies/senior-projects/.

2. Title page: listing title, student name, course name and number, date submitted, and a statement of compliance with the college honor code.

3. Table of Contents: listing the titles of chapters and the page number on which each begins. The bibliography, appendices, maps, charts, graphs, or illustrations should also be listed here.

4. Abstract: The abstract is roughly 200 words long. Its purpose is to succinctly summarize the thesis (argument) and contents of the Senior Project, including conclusions. Each student must submit an abstract of his or her Senior Project by the date the Senior Project is due. For examples of past abstracts, see http://sites.allegheny.edu/intstudies/senior-projects/ and for abstract submission guidelines see http://sites.allegheny.edu/intstudies/student-resources/form/.

5. Body: divided into as many chapters as necessary to present the subject in a well-organized fashion. Each chapter should start on a new page, which should also present the title of that chapter, together with the chapter number.

6. Bibliography: arranged according to the instructions in Kate L. Turabian, A Manual for Writers of Term Papers, Theses, and Dissertations (current edition) or any other standard formatting style consistently utilized (e.g., MLA; APA; Chicago).
Citations: Notes may be placed at the bottom of the page on which the reference occurs (footnotes), at the end of the entire work (endnotes), or as in-text citations. If endnotes are employed, they are to commence immediately after the last page of text or the last page of appendices, and before the bibliography. The endnotes for each chapter are to begin on a new page, which is to carry the number and title of the chapter to which the notes refer. Endnote pages are to be numbered in sequence from the last page of text. All notes are to conform to the standard formatting style chosen. If there are questions about proper forms of citations that are not addressed by Turabian or the reference book being consulted, it is the student’s responsibility to consult with a member of the department. Citations from a foreign language text should include the original quote and a translation of the quote into English.

Typographical errors, if few in number and minor in character, may be corrected neatly by hand in black ink on all copies. Pages on which there are numerous errors, omissions of text, or major alterations should be re-typed. Proofread carefully. The writer, not the typist, is responsible for spelling, punctuation, grammar, syntax, together with all note and bibliographical entries, as well as any and all omissions or inconsistencies in style, form, and substance.

It is to be clearly understood that any pages badly flawed with technical mistakes, any neglect of these instructions, or any failure to consistently employ standard formatting practices, may result in a penalty grade, a requirement that the entire written essay by re-typed, or, in extreme cases, failure in the Senior Project.

INTST 610 The Finished Project:

The completed written essay should be delivered to members of the Senior Project board no later than 4:30 p.m. on the due date. These dates are:

- For fall semester 2017, Tuesday, Nov. 21
- For spring semester 2018, Friday, April 13

Extensions of time will not be granted. Students are responsible for scheduling an oral examination with their board. Note: Project examinations are not given during the summer sessions.

Evaluation of the Project:

The final grade for INTST 610 will be determined by the members of the board. The grade is arrived at by evaluation of both the written project and the oral examination. Oral examinations are normally held only during the regular terms of the September-May academic year. Students will receive their final grades from the Office of the Registrar of the college.

Failure of the Project:

If a student fails to complete the Senior Project in the allotted time or to fulfill the requirements of the Program as outlined above, that student risks failure in INTST 610. Grades of “W” and "IN" are only given in truly exceptional cases. In such cases, students must consult with the Chairperson of the INTST Program and Project Director about how to proceed. In some cases, the student will be asked to begin a new project and choose a new Project Director. In other cases, students will continue to work on a similar project with the same Project Director. After Senior Project is turned in, board members may determine that the written work is not of sufficient quality to merit a passing grade. In these cases, no oral examination will be held. In such an event, the student will be notified by his or her Project Director prior to the time scheduled for the oral. It will then be necessary for the student to speak with board members (and secondarily with the Program Chairperson) on how to proceed.

Examples of Past Projects:

Students are welcome to consult past Senior Projects. They may contact Program Chairperson Laura Reeck, (lreeck@allegheny.edu) for more information.
