CLOSING REMARKS

President Mullen

ALMA MATER BEATISSIMA

Fair Allegheny, yonder on the hill,
Through all the years,
our hearts are turning still,
In love to thee, and so they ever will,
O, Alma Mater, Beatissima!

Warm rests the sun, so soft on wall and vine;
No air in all the world can equal thine,
Again we flame our torches at thy shrine,
O, Alma Mater, Beatissima!

THE AWARDS

The Blue Citation & Gold Citation

The Executive Committee of the Alumni Congress of Allegheny College authorized the awarding of the Blue Citation and the Gold Citation in the spring of 1979. The Blue Citation is awarded in appreciation and recognition of outstanding service to the College. The Gold Citation is awarded in appreciation and recognition of honor reflected on Allegheny College by virtue of the outstanding achievements of the recipient.

These awards were first presented in 1980. This year's recipients were selected for this honor by the Nomination and Awards Committee of the Alumni Council from a panel of candidates recommended by the alumni, faculty, staff and trustees of Allegheny.

The Alumni Medal

For more than half a century, the Alumni Medal has been Allegheny's most prestigious alumni award. It honors those whose devotion and service to the College far exceed the norm.

The Thoburn Award

The Thoburn Award for Excellence in Teaching is presented to a faculty member who has been at Allegheny College for 10 years or less and has demonstrated outstanding teaching as evidenced by innovative pedagogy, creative course development, sustained commitment to student learning, and support from faculty, alumni and students.

The Julian Ross Award

The Julian Ross Award for Excellence in Teaching is presented to a member of the faculty who has been at Allegheny College for more than 10 years and who embodies the qualities of an outstanding teacher. They include competence in the academic discipline and in the classroom, interaction with students, and professional and personal integrity.

The Robert T. Sherman Distinguished Service Award

The Robert T. Sherman Distinguished Service Award is given to an Allegheny staff member who has provided significant exceptional long-term support to College programs or activities and/or contributed to the College in areas not required by his/her job description. The recipient's performance exceeds expectation and he/she embodies excellence, service and dedication to Allegheny.

PEGGY TOMAN SIEGLE '70

Blue Citation

Peggy Toman Siegle is an alumna who cares deeply about her alma mater and her community. She exemplifies the Allegheny spirit by making a difference in the lives of the people she meets.

Peggy gives generously of her time and resources to the College. She helped chair three of her milestone reunions, encouraging her classmates to attend, to donate and to remember all that Allegheny has done for them and continues to do for generations of students. She flew around the country at her own expense to see and engage her classmates, urging them to join her for Reunion Weekend festivities. She also is a proud member of the William Bentley Society. A member of Alpha Chi Omega, Peggy acts as a tireless emissary for the College, whether she's recruiting students in her home state of Maine, asking fellow alumni to provide highly valued internships or supporting the Gators' softball team in Florida during its tournament play over spring break.

"Peggy has been the best representative of Allegheny I know since I met her during freshman year of college," says classmate Pam Schmitt O'Brien '70. "She united our floor (3A South) and our class with her enthusiasm and friendliness. I'd be willing to bet she knew everyone in the Class of 1970, and probably still does. She has talked the Allegheny talk since 1966. She loves our College!"

Peggy also was instrumental in forming the "Tarbell Sisterhood," a group of women who graduated in 1970 and meet at least once a year for a long weekend in New England. "Peggy unfailingly brings us Ida Tarbell bookmarks or Allegheny pens or some other tangible way to remember those years that changed our lives," says Pam.

Peggy is director of development at Habitat for Humanity/7 Rivers Maine. Earlier in her career, she served as development director for Youth Alternatives, Inc., a youth and family services agency in Maine; director of development for Kennebec Behavioral Health; director of special education for Lake Region Schools in Maine and as a speech pathologist at Johns Hopkins Hospital in Maryland.

She has raised two children, Dave and Laura, and once owned a batting cage where aspiring baseball players could hone their skills year-round.

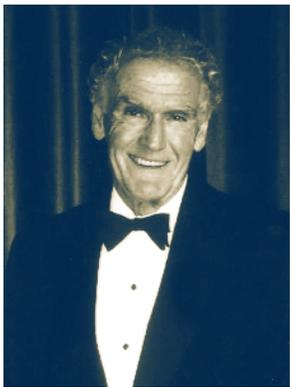

After graduating from Allegheny, Peggy earned a master's degree in speech pathology and audiology at the University of Vermont. She is president of the Phi Beta Kappa Association of Maine.

Her varied interests include actively supporting cultural organizations such as professional theater groups and museums. She serves on the board of directors of the Bowdoin International Music Festival.

Peggy proudly carries the Allegheny College banner in all that she does.

PHILIP L. ST. MORITZ '61

Blue Citation

From both a professional and philanthropic perspective, the resume of Philip St. Moritz is impressive.

Phil enjoys great success as a businessman, but his real joy comes from helping others, especially Allegheny College students, faculty and staff, a group of people for whom he cares deeply. Phil “reconnected” with the College 12 years ago when he served as co-chair of his 40th Reunion Committee. Under Phil’s leadership, the class broke a fund-raising record, presenting the College with a class gift of more than $4 million. More recently, Phil again agreed to take an active role in his 50th Reunion Committee. Not surprisingly, another fund-raising record was established.

Phil continues to serve Allegheny in every role he is asked to fill. When the College needed someone to help sponsor its annual Pittsburgh Holiday Event, Phil agreed to do it. When asked about his willingness to continue his sponsorship in future years, his response was: “You’ve got a sponsor for life.” Phil also supports the annual on-campus holiday luncheon for faculty and staff, an event he has hosted for five years.

“Phil wants to help any way he can, and almost every time we talk, he asks how he can assist and what more he can do,” says Sally Barrett Hanley '92, the College’s director of reunion giving.

On a professional level, Phil is the quintessential “self-made man.” After graduating from Allegheny, he served in the U.S. Air Force and was commissioned as a second lieutenant. After his service, he returned to Pittsburgh and began pursuing his dream of becoming a successful entrepreneur.

It is safe to say Phil has realized that goal.

In the past 40 years, he has founded seven corporations that employ more than 3,000 people in 34 offices nationwide. He is the sole owner and chief executive officer of the St. Moritz Group, which includes St. Moritz Security Services Inc., St. Moritz Building Services Inc., St. Moritz Labor Services Inc., St. Moritz Marine Services Inc., St. Moritz Services Inc., St. Moritz Properties LLC, and St. Moritz Boardwalk. The annual sales for these companies exceed $100 million.

As a dedicated alumnus, he has hired several Allegheny alumni and says he will continue to do so because of the skills, work ethic and excellence demonstrated by Allegheny graduates.

“To say that Phil is passionate about his businesses is an understatement,” says John Brady '05, whom Phil hired two months after his graduation. “The same can be said for his passion for Allegheny and his desire to inspire graduates to get involved with their alma mater.”

Allegheny is proud to have Phil as an alumnus and ambassador and we are grateful for his unwavering dedication and commitment to the College.

HAYES C. STOVER '62

Blue Citation

Hayes Stover represents all that is good about Allegheny College. As a student, alumnus and member of the board of trustees, Hayes has devoted 50 years to his alma mater and has always been generous with his time and talent.

His classmates remember Hayes as a towering figure among the freshmen. He was an Alden Scholar and a member of Pi Gamma Mu and Phi Beta Kappa honorary societies. He also worked on the Kaldron staff. He was president of his fraternity, Sigma Alpha Epsilon, in his senior year. His friends recall that one of the smartest moves he ever made was to meet, “court” and marry Patricia Dolan, who also has been a loyal supporter of Allegheny. “That must have been a key provision in the marriage contract,” says friend Henry “Bing” Ewalt '62.

A graduate of Harvard Law School, Hayes has had a successful legal practice in Pittsburgh, most recently as a partner at K&L Gates, where he specializes in labor and immigration law. He has been recognized by his peers as one of Pennsylvania’s Super Lawyers and is listed among the Best Lawyers in America.

Hayes is serving his third term on the Allegheny College Board of Trustees and has volunteered in many capacities, including board secretary. He has never missed a meeting during his tenure. Hayes also served on the presidential search committee that recommended the election of James H. Mullen, Jr.

Former Allegheny President Richard J. Cook recalls: “Hayes and Pat were among the very first people I met when coming to Allegheny. I sensed Hayes’ enthusiasm, passion and dedication from the very first. His service on the board has been stellar. His attendance and participation are exemplary.”

The family has established the Stover Family Scholarship Fund, presented annually to students who demonstrate financial need. As stated on the Stover Family Scholarship plaque, “You have opened the door to students now and for generations to come.” The Stovers belong to the William Bentley Society and the Timothy Alden Council.

Hayes also served on the Class of 1962 Reunion Committee. Bing Ewalt says of his classmate’s contribution to the committee: “Hayes is a valuable member. All of his suggestions are pertinent and well thought-out. His warmth and enthusiasm are contagious as he reaches out to members of our class.”

Always willing to help and offer solid advice, Hayes has served on a number of Pennsylvania and Allegheny County Bar Association panels as well as several non-profit organizations and government agencies, including the zoning boards in the Town of McCandless and Edgeworth Borough.

The Stovers live in Sewickley, Pa., and have two adult children, Michael and Diana.

MICHAEL M. ALCH '78

Gold Citation

In his professional life, Michael Alch invests and manages money for Fifth Third Bank in Chicago. In his “other” life as a volunteer and philanthropist, Michael invests in and helps save young lives in one of the poorest nations in the Western Hemisphere.

In 2004, Michael made his first trip to Honduras to visit orphanages in the Central American nation. He was so moved by the experience that he became enthusiastically involved with All God’s Children, Ltd., a nonprofit group that exclusively supports orphanages and housing care ministries in Comyagua, Honduras. All God’s Children benefits more than 175 children at two orphanages and also supports unwed teen mothers and the mentally impaired by providing housing and medical care for them.

After Michael’s first trip, he began to recruit other members of the Chicago-area business community to travel to Honduras to assist the efforts of All God’s Children. He was able to encourage his friends and colleagues to sponsor children and donate duffel bags full of supplies. He then received approval for, and developed, an annual charity golf outing to benefit All God’s Children. Michael took on the responsibility of soliciting corporate sponsors, putting together publications, making the golfing arrangements and attending to all the details of the day’s events. To date, the All God’s Children Open has raised more than $110,000 for the organization. The event attracts more than 80 golfers from the Chicago area.

“Every year Michael does an amazing job of seeking out new supporters and participants to play a role in making the All God’s Children golf outings a success,” says his colleague Philip J. Perzek. “Through his tireless and passionate work, Michael is making a real impact not only in the lives of so many of the children but also in the hearts and minds of those in the Chicago business community whom Michael has connected with All God’s Children. I simply cannot imagine a more noble and honorable pursuit for any alumnus of Allegheny College.”

Michael is the vice president of Fifth Third Bank, a position he has held since 2009. Prior to that, he worked at the CIT Group, Banc One Leasing Corp. and C.I.T. Group Holdings Inc. He received an MBA from Sacred Heart University after earning a bachelor’s degree in economics. Michael and his wife, Debra, have a son, Harrison. They live in Bannockburn, Ill.

W. PETER PETERSON '59

Gold Citation

Dr. Pete Peterson has tended to scores of physical ailments during his decades as a physician, specializing in internal medicine and spinal cord injuries. He has helped to heal the emotional, social and spiritual wounds of his fellow man as well.

Since graduating from Allegheny, Pete’s impact on the world has been dramatic. His work for the underserved, the underprivileged and for minorities of diverse backgrounds is widely known and admired among his peers.

His informal resumé of accomplishments in service to others is impressive. Here are just a few highlights of Pete’s philanthropy: As a medical student at Harvard, he became a member of Big Brothers Big Sisters and 50 years later maintains a friendship with his “little brother.”

Since his service in the U.S. Army Medical Corps in the Vietnam War, Pete has championed the causes of service veterans in the Denver, Colo., region and worked to improve the lives of several Vietnamese children whom Pete and his wife, Mary, helped raise and educate. Pete continues to tutor in Denver-area schools, concentrating his efforts on minority students. Each summer, as part of a program called Seeking Common Ground, the Petersons host teenagers visiting from the strife-torn Middle East. Pete leads social-action organizations and has been cited for his volunteerism in those groups. He has chaired Coloradans for Immigrant Rights and the Immigration Task Force for the Unitarian Church. Pete received the Unitarian Church Social Action Award in 2010 for his work on the Unitarian Task Force for Projects in Racial Harmony.

His friend and classmate Neil Abramson says: “Pete represents the best values of a physician – an educator, an investigator and a caring, empathetic deliverer of health care. His goals and objectives to contribute to the well-being of others have benefited all types of individuals ... Allegheny should take pride in his accomplishments.”

On a professional level, Pete practiced internal medicine and served on the faculty of the University of Colorado Medical School. He then founded the pulmonary care departments in two Denver hospitals and established a nationally recognized center for quadriplegics. In that capacity, he acted as a consultant in two widely known cases, those of the late actor Christopher Reeve, injured in an equestrian accident, and the late Alabama Governor George Wallace, wounded by a gunman during his presidential campaign in 1972.

“What stands out to me is Dr. Peterson’s life work for social justice over and above his outstanding medical career,” says former classmate and Allegheny trustee, Dr. Herb Niles. “His extensive involvement with his wife, Mary, to bridge the gaps between African Americans, Latinos, Native Americans, the Palestinian community, the Vietnamese community and members of the Jewish community within the framework of the Unitarian Church has been groundbreaking. Many, many lives have been impacted in a very positive way through the efforts of Pete and Mary.”

The Petersons live in Denver and have two children, Lisa and Eric. Their “extended” family, however, spans the globe.

MARY E. SCEIFORD '54

Alumni Medal

Those who know Mary Sceiford observe that she lives modestly, but when she volunteers her time and resources, she does so in the most generous ways imaginable. Whether it's tending to her beloved orchards in North East, Pa., or championing a cause on behalf of students at Allegheny College, Mary is passionate about the task at hand.

For the past three decades, Allegheny has relied on Mary's vast professional knowledge in the fields of communication and education, seeking her wise advice and asking her to nurture special projects. Mary has served Allegheny tirelessly as a member of the board of trustees since 1975 (with the exception of a couple of mandated one-year gaps in service). Her work on myriad committees, including student affairs and campus planning, and initiatives such as the Task Force for Developing Strategic Partnerships in Meadville and the Region, and the Annual Giving Participation and Student Alumni Subcommittee, has had a profound impact on the campus and community. She also has served on the Alumni Council, the Timothy Alden Council Executive Committee and the Reunion Committee with energy and distinction.

Mary's family roots run deep at Allegheny. They can be traced back generations to her maternal great-grandfather who earned his diploma in the mid-1800s. Mary followed the family tradition and graduated with a bachelor's degree in education in 1954. She has been making her impact on the world ever since. First as a teacher and then as an administrator for the Corporation for Public Broadcasting where she worked for 22 years, Mary has positively influenced scores of young lives. In 1983, Allegheny recognized Mary's professional accomplishments with a Gold Citation.

Among her many contributions to Allegheny, Mary established the Sally Pettit Humphreys Scholarship Fund in 1983 in honor of her college roommate, travel companion and lifelong friend. The scholarship assists students annually in the study-away program. She has supported construction of the Wise Sport & Fitness Center, the Patricia Bush Tippie Alumni Center, renovations at Ford Chapel and has invested in the Cook-Lahti Projects Fund, ACCEL and the Peter and Ellen Weir Laffer Scholarship Fund.

Her affinity for Allegheny's students is apparent to all who work with Mary. "She served on the North Village II Client Committee with students. They loved her," says Larry Lee, the College's senior associate vice president for finance and planning. "She encouraged them to express their feelings and be active participants. She has always been an advocate for students."

Mary continues to sow the seeds of success for students at Allegheny in her characteristically low-profile way. She answers all calls for help from her alma mater enthusiastically and generously. Her dedication to the College and its governing board serves as an inspiration to all who meet her. It is with deep gratitude for her many years of outstanding service and leadership that we honor Mary Sceiford with Allegheny College's oldest and most prestigious award, the Alumni Medal.

STEPHEN Z. ONYEIWU

Thoburn Award for Excellence in Teaching

Here is what two colleagues have to say about Dr. Steve Onyeiwu: "Steve has innovated across the board in his classes," and "Steve is at the cutting edge."

A highly regarded member of the Economics Department, Dr. Onyeiwu joined the Allegheny faculty in 2001 and has been an integral part of the managerial economics program, of which he is co-director. He has embraced the advantages computer technology offers in the classroom.

A measure of his success as a mentor, "is the high regard students have for him," says Stephen D. Casler, professor of economics. "Student narratives written at the end of each semester provide a firsthand look at student perceptions of Steve as a teacher. Across the range of classes he teaches, the one word that appears most frequently is 'enthusiastic'."

Dr. Onyeiwu, an associate professor, teaches advanced economics courses and first-year seminars. He also is a sought-after mentor for students working on their senior projects. His research, especially that on the Meadville-area tool and die industry and African economic development, brings acclaim to the College and opportunities for students and graduates.

"Students repeatedly praise the quality, clarity and organization of his lectures; the interaction, encouragement and engagement provided to students to offer their opinions during class discussions; and his attempts to get everyone involved in an interactive learning process," says Dr. Casler. "Students find true value in the connections he makes between the theoretical components of class material and the applications in the world, manifested in guest speakers and field trips. In short, he has a profound effect on students."

"The thing that I enjoyed most about Professor Onyeiwu was his ability and willingness to apply course material to the actual business world," says Benjamin Montgomery '05. "This was very important to me in the long run. It helped me look at the material in a different way and certainly made it more interesting and meaningful."

Fellow economics professor Don Goldstein knows why Dr. Onyeiwu is highly regarded. "A secret to his success is the familiarity with these issues – management of technology, innovation (there's that word again), stakeholders – created by Steve's research, which infuses and informs his pedagogy."

Dr. Onyeiwu's dedication to teaching and to his students doesn't end with his work in the classroom. He often can be seen at events for prospective students and other campus activities when there is a call for volunteers. His responsibilities include convening the Managerial Economics Board of Visitors meeting – where alumni provide advice and guidance for the managerial program – and organizing the Executive Roundtable – where business and civic leaders, mostly alumni, address critical economic issues.

Dr. Onyeiwu also stays active in the local business community, bringing the best of the Allegheny advantage to Meadville and western Pennsylvania.

WILLIAM G. BYWATER, JR.

Julian Ross Award for Excellence in Teaching

Allegheny is one of the top liberal arts colleges in the nation because of outstanding faculty who encourage independent thinking and approach issues of social, scientific and philosophical importance from a variety of viewpoints.

There is no better example of an outstanding teacher and a life-shaping mentor than Dr. William “Bill” Bywater. Dr. Bywater is synonymous with Allegheny College, and as he retires from full-time teaching after 44 years, this award is a fitting tribute to his service to this institution and his deep commitment to Allegheny and the students he has taught.

Dr. Bywater’s colleague Eric Boynton estimates that “Bill has taught well over 5,000 Allegheny students and advised many hundreds.” But more importantly, according to Dr. Boynton, “Bill has altered the course of many of these students’ lives. Bill has consistently worked to expose students to under-studied, socially relevant and significant issues of injustice in both domestic and global contexts.”

Dr. Bywater, professor of philosophy, shared his all-inclusive vision early at Allegheny, helping to found the Women’s Studies Program not long after arriving on campus in 1967. One of his most far-reaching contributions has been coordinating campus-wide learning efforts. His first project, encouraging faculty to integrate ideas from critical race theory into their courses, culminated in a spring 2008 conference in which Allegheny students presented their work on current social scholars while those very scholars sat in the audience. More recently, his campus-wide efforts and conferences have focused on global citizenship and sustainability, issues about which Dr. Bywater cares deeply. These pioneering educational opportunities have developed into the College’s annual theme program. Dr. Bywater’s Allegheny legacy will carry on for years and affect many more students, thanks to a newly endowed Bywater Conference Fund.

In the teaching realm, Dr. Bywater’s classrooms are noted for being student-centered. Christopher Ames ’89 says “Dr. Bywater’s courses, such as ‘Contemporary Black Thinkers’ as well as courses in feminism and other social-philosophical movements, were instrumental in my intellectual maturation. He worked with me on two independent study courses that were among my best experiences as a student.”

Says Elizabeth Marsh ’07: “Dr. Bywater taught that self-awareness and ethical consideration of others are a part of any academic career. If nothing else, this will always stay with me.”

“His career has been marked by the complete effort to come to terms with ethical meaning for our society in our time,” says Dr. Boynton. “In the best sense of Allegheny’s values of personal integrity, justice, social responsibility, respect for individuals and acknowledging diversity, he should be hailed for his early courage, true tenacity in pursuing difficult and uncomfortable questions, for his humility in approaching questions that cut deep, for the solicitude he expresses for those on the underside of the story, and for his kindness toward the many generations of Allegheny students in his care.”

Robert T. Sherman Distinguished Service Award

Whether or not she knows it, Melissa Mencotti has a reputation – that she is among the hardest working professionals on the Allegheny campus, admired for her high level of professionalism and unfettered willingness to serve others.

Melissa, the director of gift planning in the Office of Development and Alumni Affairs, garners the admiration of co-workers across campus, and the alumni and friends of Allegheny whom she serves.

“What I find most impressive about Melissa is that she willingly gives the most valuable asset that any of us have – time – when it can benefit Allegheny College, our students, our alumni, our colleagues and our community,” says Kathy Roos, director of campus communications and College editor.

Melissa joined Allegheny in 2000 as director of development research, also working as director of prospect development before taking her current position in 2008. She recently completed a graduate degree in philanthropy – not because she saw it as a steppingstone in her career, but because she thought it would help inform her work for the College. Prior to her Allegheny career, Melissa was the assistant director of Women’s Services, Inc. in Meadville for 12 years.

Gilly Ford, assistant to the president for board relations, uses these words to describe Melissa: “Kind, compassionate, good heart, clear communicator and thoughtful, especially when it comes to how her words or actions will impact another person.”

Melissa also took the initiative to start a women’s group at the Unitarian Universalist Church in Meadville to explore spiritual issues. “It is typical of Melissa that she values the whole person as she works with people on and off campus,” says Kathy Roos.

In addition to her work in gift planning, Melissa has served on the Finance and Facilities Committee, regarded as one of the most demanding volunteer assignments on campus. “Melissa took on this extra responsibility and met it with the hard work and determination to do her best that are typical of how she approaches every task,” Kathy recalls.

Retired Allegheny employee Nancy J. Sheridan provides a little more insight: “As a board member at Women’s Services, I became close to Melissa, who never faulted in her work and went beyond the duties of her job because she is so thoughtful and such a good, dedicated worker. She is a gem!”

This brief outline of Melissa’s career is just a sampling of her accomplishments and dedication to Allegheny and the greater community. She embodies the highest ideals of what it means to be associated with the College – integrity, lack of pretension, kindness and a desire not only to do what is best for the institution but also to support alumni, students, colleagues and community members.
