I believe that the best way to allocate our country's scarce resources is with a mixed economy. Under such a system healthy competition is encouraged and yields high productivity. Incentives are offered and markets are run efficiently. The involvement of government in the economy acts to regulate markets and protect individuals' rights. Also the needy and less fortunate are provided for with the involvement of government, some equity is maintained. A mixed economy allows for economic freedom while still regulating the economy to some extent.

To avoid this, use Sakai's 'Paste From Word' feature which is available in all Sakai text editing boxes.

Original Text

1. Copy the text (Ctrl + c) from your word document
