GET GATOR CASH AND EAT DOWNTOWN!

You can eat at any of the following restaurants:

 The Market House Grille Great home-cooked breakfast and lunch that is enjoyed by all.	 The Whole Darn Thing Amazing subs made to order on artisan bread and with special sauce.
 Creative Crust Delicious artisan breads and desserts that will always keep you coming back for more.	 Pizza Villa Great local pizza, sandwiches, and more with tremendous service and a great location.

To enable this option, simply go to financial services (located in Schultz Hall) and deposit money into your GATOR CASH (SHOP) account. This can be any amount of money you would like and will enable you to use your AllCard at these select places downtown. These places are alcohol-free establishments and are a great alternative from McKinley's or Brooks.

MAKE SURE TO GET THIS SO YOU CAN EAT DOWNTOWN EASILY WITH YOUR FRIENDS!!

What are Gator Days?

Tuesday, October 23rd is the date set for the first Allegheny College Gator Day. According to Terry Bensel, Associate Dean of the College, "At its most basic level, Gator Days are meant to "clear the calendar" so that we can have a day for a whole variety of academic and co-curricular planning on campus." The Gator Day idea originated in Curriculum Committee discussions regarding changes to the academic calendar. After an initial motion to change the academic calendar was voted down by the faculty at the end of the 2010-11 academic year the Curriculum Committee, with strong support from its student members, introduced a new motion at the November 2011 faculty meeting. This second motion (which passed unanimously at the December 9, 2011 faculty meeting) involved more minor changes to the academic calendar, but still included the idea of setting aside one day each semester for "all campus programming" (aka Gator Days) Gator Days, as described in the Curriculum Committee proposal, are envisioned as providing an opportunity for "student-centered programming that will create a greater sense of campus community" and will be considered a major campus event.

Among the specific activities listed as possibilities for Gator Days are departmental and program open houses. These open houses are intended to provide an opportunity for academic departments and programs to showcase their curricula and research activities to undecided students and to answer questions students might have about majoring or minoring in a given subject. There is compelling evidence that students retain better when they make personal connections with academic departments and programs early in their college career and departmental/program open houses potentially provide that opportunity. They also give departments and programs a chance to communicate information to students about major/minor requirements, off-campus study opportunities, junior seminars, senior project guidelines, etc.

Scheduling Questions???

You are trying to navigate Scheduler but you're not sure how to proceed or who to call. Unfortunately, there is no centralized person or department in charge of scheduling spaces on campus.

Hopefully this will clarify some of the confusion. Questions or assistance concerning requests or reservations from August 15 through Commencement of each year should be directed to the Building Coordinators for the relevant building. (for facility contacts see page 2)

During the summer and all academic breaks, from Commencement through August 14 of each year, the Office of Conference & Event Services approves all campus spaces and answers related event questions.

It is recommended that persons use Scheduler to make their own reservations and ask for assistance from the Building Coordinator, only if you have issues/problems. To avoid scheduling conflicts, please check both Scheduler and Master Calendar prior to booking spaces.
